-: About the conference :-

The trickle-down effect of economic development to the poorer sections of the society did not successfully lead to achieve economic welfare. Poverty and unemployment persist mainly due to the inability of all groups of people to participate in the process of economic development. In this regard, the establishment of welfare state ensured by Indian Constitution assumes greater significance. India is making a determined attempt to fulfil its idea of a welfare state not only in principle but also through economic planning for justice, social, economic and political development. The central and state governments have announced various welfare programmes for overall development of women, children, lower castes, minorities, senior citizens, unorganized sector, differently-abled and others. Vulnerability arises from the risks and insecurity caused by life cycle changes , illness or health problems, natural calamities and the process of globalization and structural adjustments in the economy, global warming and increasingly flexible labour relations can lead to increased incidence of shocks. Social protection system helps to absorb the shocks and minimize its adverse impact on the vulnerable and poor and helps to make growth more pro-poor.

-: Objectives of the Conference :-

1. To provide a platform for academics, researchers and students of Social Sciences and Management to deliberate upon the issues of welfare programmes in India.
2. To sensitize the participants to the challenges of welfare programmes in India
3. To evolve strategies & policies for successful welfare programmes implementation in India.
