Introduction of the Seminar

Marginalized groups in India refer to communities that face social, economic, and political exclusion due to historical disadvantages, discrimination, and systemic barriers. These include Scheduled Castes (Dalits), Scheduled Tribes (Adivasis), Other Backward Classes (OBCs), minorities, women, persons with disabilities, and the LGBTQ+ community. Despite constitutional safeguards and government initiatives, they often experience limited access to education, healthcare, employment, and political representation. Marginalization perpetuates poverty, inequality, and restricted social mobility, hindering their full participation in society. Addressing these disparities is crucial to fostering an inclusive and equitable India.

The seminar will examine these issues, evaluate the effectiveness of existing policies, and explore solutions for greater inclusion. Its goal is to promote a more equitable and inclusive society for all.
